PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN IS NOW WARMING UP

1 DEMOCRAT IS STUMPING THE COUNTRY

5 REPUBLICANS VIGOROUSLY SET IN THE FIELD FOR BATTLE

ACTUAL WORK STARTS FOR SE- LECTION OF DELEGATES TO JUNE CONVENTIONS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 20—(UP)—With one Democratic candidate stumping the country and five Republicans vigorously in the field for battle, actual work began today for selection of delegates to the June nominating conventions.

In four states—Illinois, North Dakota, Ohio and New Hampshire—machinery is being set under way this week to nominate the men who will choose the presidential candidates for both parties at Kansas City and Houston.

District delegates are required to file in Illinois today and in Ohio and New Hampshire Friday. In North Dakota Tuesday proposal men are to be named for a state convention which will select the delegation.

With this first selection work being done, there is marked activity on all fronts, and prospects of a highly important political week.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover is to return Wednesday from his Florida fishing trip to handle three issues which have been raised regarding his candidacy. He is to answer the delicate prohibition questionaire of Senator Borah, which was sent him a week ago to place him on record as to what sort of prohibition plank he would favor in the Republican platform. Then a letter of North Dakota Republicans demanding to know his position on farm relief and he is to appear Friday before the Senate Commerce committee to testify regarding the dangerous flood control issue.

All are enormously important to his candidacy. Now he has support of many wet leaders as well as dries. Senator Willis of Ohio, who is contesting bitterly for the state delegation there, is champion of the Anti-Saloon League in his home state and has already charged that wets are working behind Hoover. The secretary's friends fear he may antagonize one or the other of his supporting factions by his answer.

Some members of the Senate Commerce committee including Willis are planning to ask Hoover Friday if he would support the Coolidge flood control plan which would require states to pay 20 per cent of construction costs or whether he would favor the Mississippi states plan for federal assumption of all construction work.

Hoover's friends feel it may prove a dangerous political situation which could develop embarrassing consequences.

Willis has been in Ohio over the week end laying ground for a hot contest to protect what he claims are his "Favorit Son, Rights" to the Ohio delegation. His supporters claim he already has negotiated an arrangement with the Watson, Curtis and Lowden factions which would prevent any of his support from going to Hoover even after it leaves him at the Kansas City convention.

Senator Watson of Indiana is expected to announce formally this week his candidacy for the Indiana delegation. Senator Curtis of Kansas is sending his colleague Senator Capper, to New York Thursday to give a boost to the Curtis club which is seeking a share of the New York state delegation.

In Democratic ranks Senator Reed of Missouri is out on a stump campaign which will take him to the Pacific coast. He is not opposing Governor Al Smith in his speeches, but he is out to get what delegates he can for himself. He makes his first speech tonight at Dallas, Texas, and his second tomorrow at Tulsa, Okla. Reed's tour is the first official move of the Democratic candidates, Smith supporters being content at present to work on the quiet.

PROJECT FORMED FOR WORLD WIDE LOCARNO PACTS

SECURITY COMMISSION OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS EX- PECTED TO ACT

HINGES ON LATER REDUCION AND LIMITATION OF ARMA- MENTS

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, Feb. 20.—A project for a world wide series of Locarno agreements was expected to be the result of a meeting here today of the security commission of the League of Nations.

The specific task was to establish a basis for security that would make possible the elaboration of a later project for a general reduction and limitation of armaments.

The majority of the nations interested in the commission, particularly Great Britain, Norway and Sweden, have already notified the League they believed security results could best be attained by a series of conventions based on the arbitration, conciliation and internal revenue defense clauses of the Locarno treaties.

The body, which met today, was composed of the nations that were represented at the League's preparatory disarmament commission, together with the Soviet government in the capacity as observer. It was created at the preparatory disarmament conference of the League last November when the Russians participated for the first time.

The United States, member of the preparatory disarmament commission, was absent. The United States pointed out particularly that it could not be a party to any agreement to guarantee security of other nations.

The high point of the commission's meeting, should it develop, is expected to be the announcement of the Soviet observer of the willingness of Russia to negotiate non-aggression pacts with any other nation.

The commission will have as the immediate basis of its work the following projects:

Arbitration projects presented by former Foreign Minister Holsti of Finland.

Security agreements presented by former Foreign Minister Politis of Greece.

Plans for the strengthening of the security articles of the League covenant presented by former Foreign Minister De Rutger of Holland.

Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia presided at the meeting today. The nations represented included Argentina, Belgium, England, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Chile, China, Colombia, France, Finland, Germany, Italy, Japan, Holland, Poland, Roumania, Serbia, Sweden, Canada, Greece and the Soviet as an observer.

A report of the commission's work will be presented to the League preparatory disarmament commission on March 15, as basis of a project for reduction and limitation of armaments.

FEDERAL TROOPS PURSUE BAND OF CATHOLIC REBELS

LATTER ATTEMPTED TO CAP- TURE MEXICAN CITY OF CUANAJUATO

HAS BEEN CENTER OF CATHOLIC REVOLT AGAINST MEXICAN RELIGIOUS LAWS

Mexico City, Feb. 20.—(U.P.)—Federal troops today were reported in pursuit of a band of Catholic rebels who Saturday attempted to capture the city of Cuernavaca—which has been the center of the Catholic revolt against the Mexican religious laws.

Dispatches to the police of the city of Zenry said the rebels entered, overwhelmed the garrison, but in a sharp conflict, which followed, were driven off.

The city temporarily was in panic as the raid and the subsequent military clashes were under way but order soon was restored under the direction of General Jaime Carrillo, chief of military operations in the state.

Federal troops, from several directions, were brought into the city to repel the raid, it was said. After the attack had been ended and the rebels routed, the rebels were ordered in pursuit of the rebel band.

Meanwhile priests who have been arrested in San Luis Potosi and Puebla were brought to Mexico City under guard of secret service agents. The agents have been in a nation-wide round-up of Catholic leaders and it was believed that at least 12 priests were now held by authorities.

War Minister Joaquin Amaro was planning to return shortly from the states of Jalisco and Colima where he has been busy studying the progress of the campaign against the rebels.

The attack on Cuernavaca—a city of 20,000 population—was the boldest move of the rebels since the religious laws were put into effect in July, 1926.

ANGLO-CATHOLIC DISPUTE BLAMED FOR TROUBLE

CONGREGATION AT ST. CUTH- BERT'S CHURCH, DARVEN, ENG., INTERRUPTS SERVICE

SANG HYMNS FOR HOURS SO THAT VICAR COULD NOT DELIVER SERMON

Darven, Eng., Feb. 20.—(U.P.)—The Anglo-Catholic dispute, within the Church of England, today was blamed for the threatened violence to Vicar E. B. Lauria after the congregation at St. Cuthbert's church for hours had sung hymns to prevent his sermon.

Both the morning and evening services at the church were stopped and after the morning service yesterday a crowd of approximately 7,000 persons gathered and pushed and shoved the Vicar about. Two persons were injured before the crowd could be dispersed and the Vicar escorted to safety.

The protests against the alleged Anglo-Catholic services started shortly after morning services began. The congregation objected to the Eucharist (sung at the communion). When the Vicar entered the pulpit to deliver his sermon the congregation started to sing hymns.

The Vicar made several attempts to begin his sermon but the crowd of 1,000—all standing—continued their singing, emphasizing particularly "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "God Save the King." After two hours of such disorder the Vicar finally quit the pulpit and left the church.

Outside a crowd, estimated at between 7,000 and 8,000 gathered and started pushing and shoving the Vicar about. He finally was shoved into the shrubbery surrounding the church and both foot and mounted police were necessary to escort the Vicar to safety and disperse the crowd. Several ugly scenes were reported before the crowd had been dispersed.

The night service was to have been in charge of Curate N. Crawshaw. He arose to preach and the crowd again stood and started singing. This lasted for seventy minutes and the Curate was unable to start preaching. Finally Vicar Lauria closed the service and in company with Curate Crawshaw was escorted home by police. A crowd followed them jeering and hissing.

The demonstrations were said to be a culmination of the Protestant opposition to the Vicar's alleged Anglo-Catholic practices. There have been similar demonstrations, although of lesser proportion, weekly for the past several months.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS SPEED UP LEGISLATION

SHAPING IT AS FAR AS POSSIBLE ALONG LINES LAID DOWN BY COOLIDGE

CONFRONTED BY CLOSE ASSOCI- ATION OF LEGISLATION WITH POLITICS

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 20.—(U.P.)—Republican leaders in congress prepared today to speed up legislation but to shape it as far as possible along the lines laid down by President Coolidge last week.

They are confronted with a situation they face every "presidential year," the close association of legislation with politics. This applies to the major matters with whose trend of solution President Coolidge takes issue—flood relief, farm relief and tax reduction—as well as with other legislation not so controversial but bound up with politics in one way or another.

Compromises will be sought on some of these issues, which takes time, while others will have to be dropped quietly, if possible. All of which means that legislative accomplishments will be few this session.

Presidential politics is involved as well as the campaigns of 435 members of the house and 32 members of the senate for re-election this fall. This applies to farm relief, flood relief and tax reduction, primarily, while the navy has become involved lately by the public protests against large expenditures proposed.

Gusts of wind damaged trees, broke a number of plate glass windows and hampered traffic in the cities.

15 YEAR OLD DISPUTE OVER 100 POUND FISH RESULTS IN 2 DEATHS

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 20.—(U.P.)—A 15-year-old dispute over a 100-pound fish catch resulted yesterday in the deaths of two fishermen and the filing of two murder charges against a third.

Fifteen years ago George Lay and George Elliott were members of a fishing party. A catfish weighing 100 pounds was caught on a trout line and both men claimed the fish.

The dispute claim remained unsettled and led to considerable ill-feeling.

Last Friday Lay, Elliott and Ross Gustin went on another fishing party. The disputed "catch" again was mentioned, it is alleged, and Lay and Gustin were shot and killed. Arrest of Elliott followed.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN IS NOW WARMING UP

1 DEMOCRAT IS STUMPING THE COUNTRY

5 REPUBLICANS VIGOROUSLY SET IN THE FIELD FOR BATTLE

ACTUAL WORK STARTS FOR SE- LECTION OF DELEGATES TO JUNE CONVENTIONS

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Feb. 20.—(UP)—
With one Democratic candidate stumping the country and five Republicans vigorously in the field for battle, actual work began today for selection of delegates to the June nominating conventions.

In four states—Illinois, North Dakota, Ohio and New Hampshire—machinery is being set under way this week to nominate the men who will choose the presidential candidates for both parties at Kansas City and Houston.

District delegates are required to file in Illinois today and in Ohio and New Hampshire Friday. In North Dakota Tuesday proposal men are to be named for a state convention which will select the delegation.

With this first selection work being done, there is marked activity on all fronts, and prospects of a highly important political week.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover is to return Wednesday from his Florida fishing trip to handle three issues which have been raised regarding his candidacy. He is to answer the delicate prohibition questionnaire of Senator Borah, which was sent him a week ago to place him on record as to what sort of prohibition plank he would favor in the Republican platform. Then a letter of North Dakota Republicans demanding to know his position on farm relief and he is to appear Friday before the Senate Commerce committee to testify regarding the dangerous flood control issue.

All are enormously important to his candidacy. Now he has support of many wet leaders as well as dries.
Senator Willis of Ohio, who is contesting bitterly for the state delegation there, is champion of the Anti-Saloon League in its home state and has already charged that wets are working behind Hoover. The secretary's friends fear he may antagonize one or the other of his supporting factions by his answer.

Some members of the Senate Commerce committee including Willis are planning to ask Hoover Friday if he would support the Coolidge flood control plan which would require states to pay 20 per cent of construction costs or whether he would favor the Mississippi states plan for federal assumption of all construction work.

Hoover's friends feel it may prove a dangerous political situation which could develop embarrassing consequences.

Willis has been in Ohio over the week end laying ground for a hot contest to protect what he claims are his "Favorit Son's Rights" to the Ohio delegation. His supporters claim he already has negotiated an arrangement with the Watson, Curtis and Lowden factions which would prevent any of his support from going to Hoover even after it leaves him at the Kansas City convention.

Senator Watson of Indiana is expected to announce formally this week his candidacy for the Indiana delegation. Senator Curtis of Kansas is sending his colleague Senator Capper, to New York Thursday to give a boost to the Curtis club which is seeking a share of the New York state delegation.

In Democratic ranks Senator Reed of Missouri is out on a stump campaign which will take him to the Pacific coast. He is not opposing Governor Al Smith in his speeches, but he is out to get what delegates he can for himself. He makes his first speech tonight at Dallas, Texas, and his second tomorrow at Tulsa, Okla.
Reed's tour is the first official move of the Democratic candidates. Smith supporters being content at present to work on the quiet.

PROJECT FORMED FOR WORLD WIDE LOCARNO PACTS

SECURITY COMMISSION OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS EX- PECTED TO ACT

HINGES ON LATER REDUCTION AND LIMITATION OF ARMA- MENTS

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Geneva, Feb. 20.—A project for a world wide series of Locarno agreements was expected to be the result of a meeting here today of the security commission of the League of Nations.

The specific task was to establish a basis for security that would make possible the elaboration of a later project for a general reduction and limitation of armaments.

The majority of the nations interested in the commission, particularly Great Britain, Norway and Sweden, have already notified the League they believed security results could best be attained by a series of conventions based on the arbitration, conciliation and internal revenue defense clauses of the Locarno treaties.

The body, which met today, was composed of the nations that were represented at the League's preparatory disarmament commission, together with the Soviet government in the capacity as observer. It was created at the preparatory disarmament conference of the League last November when the Russians participated for the first time.

The United States, member of the preparatory disarmament commission, was absent. The United States pointed out particularly that it could not be a party to any agreement to guarantee security of other nations.

The high point of the commission's meeting, should it develop, is expected to be the announcement of the Soviet observer of the willingness of Russia to negotiate non-aggression pacts with any other nation.

The commission will have as the immediate basis of its work the following projects:

Arbitration projects presented by former Foreign Minister Holsti of Finland.

Security agreements presented by former Foreign Minister Politis of Greece.

Plans for the strengthening of the security articles of the League covenant presented by former Foreign Minister De Rutger of Holland.

Foreign Minister Benes of Czecho-Slovakia presided at the meeting today. The nations represented included Argentina, Belgium, England, Bulgaria, Czecho-Slovakia, Chile, China, Colombia, France, Finland, Germany, Italy, Japan, Holland, Poland, Roumania, Serbia, Sweden, Canada, Greece and the Soviet as an observer.

A report of the commission's work will be presented to the League preparatory disarmament commission on March 15, as basis of a project for reduction and limitation of armaments.

TO PRESENT EVIDENCE IN HICKMAN-HUNT CASE SOON TODAY

Los Angeles, Feb. 20.—(UP)—Presentation of evidence may begin today in the joint trial of William Edward Hickman and Wally Hunt for the murder of Ivy Toms, Los Angeles druggist.

Selection of a jury which was begun last Wednesday was expected to be completed today. Defense attorneys have employed twenty-one of the 30 peremptory challenges allotted them to excuse prospective jurors.

Toms was shot and killed during a holdup Christmas eve, 1926. Hickman and Hunt have confessed participate in the holdup but both deny having killed Toms in their battle with a policeman who surprised them in the drug store.

ANGLO-CATHOLIC DISPUTE BLAMED FOR TROUBLE

CONGREGATION AT ST. CUTH- BERT'S CHURCH, DARVEN, ENG., INTERRUPTS SERVICE

SANG HYMNS FOR HOURS SO THAT VICAR COULD NOT DELIVER SERMON

Darven, Eng., Feb. 20.—(UP)— The Anglo-Catholic dispute, within the Church of England, today was blamed for the threatened violence to Vicar E. B. Lauria after the congregation at St. Cuthbert's church for hours had sung hymns to prevent his sermon.

Both the morning and evening services at the church were stopped and after the morning service yesterday a crowd of approximately 7,000 persons gathered and pushed and shoved the Vicar about. Two persons were injured before the crowd could be dispersed and the Vicar escorted to safety.

The protests against the alleged Anglo-Catholic services started shortly after morning services began The congregation objected to the Eucharist (sung at the communion).
When the Vicar entered the pulpit to deliver his sermon the congregation started to sing hymns.

The Vicar made several attempts to begin his sermon but the crowd of 1,000—all standing—continued their singing, emphasizing particularly "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "God Save the King." After two hours of such disorder the Vicar finally quit the pulpit and left the church.

Outside a crowd, estimated at between 7,000 and 8,000 gathered and started pushing and shoving the Vicar about. He finally was shoved into the shrubbery surrounding the church and both foot and mounted police were necessary to escort the Vicar to safety and disperse the crowd. Several ugly scenes were reported before the crowd had been dispersed.

The night service was to have been in charge of Curate N. Crawshaw.
He arose to preach and the crowd again stood and started singing.
This lasted for seventy minutes and the Curate was unable to start preaching. Finally Vicar Lauria closed the service and in company with Curate Crawshaw was escorted home by police. A crowd followed them jeering and hissing.

The demonstrations were said to be a culmination of the Protestant opposition to the Vicar's alleged Anglo-Catholic practices. There have been similar demonstrations, although of lesser proportion, weekly for the past several months.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS SPEED UP LEGISLATION

SHAPING IT AS FAR AS POSSIBLE ALONG LINES LAID DOWN BY COOLIDGE

CONFRONTED BY CLOSE ASSOCI- ATION OF LEGISLATION WITH POLITICS

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Feb. 20.—(UP)—Republican leaders in congress prepared today to speed up legislation but to shape it as far as possible along the lines laid down by President Coolidge last week.

They are confronted with a situation they face every "presidential year," the close association of legislation with politics. This applies to the major matters with whose trend of solution President Coolidge takes issue—flood relief, farm relief and tax reduction—as well as with other legislation not so controversial, but bound up with politics in one way or another.

Compromises will be sought on some of these issues, which takes time, while others will have to be dropped quietly, if possible. All of which means that legislative accomplishments will be few this session.

Presidential politics is involved as well as the campaigns of 435 members of the house and 32 members of the senate for re-election this fall.
This applies to farm relief, flood relief and tax reduction, primarily, while the navy has become involved lately by the public protests against large expenditures proposed.

RIISING TEMPERATURE IN MINNESOTA WITH CLEAR SKIES

St. Paul, Feb. 20.—(UP)—Fair skies tonight, followed by increasing cloudiness and rising temperatures Tuesday are predicted for Minnesota and the northwest following winter's latest onslaught over the week end.

Sub-zero temperatures riding on the crest of a gale, with snow in some portions, caused considerable damage to property and suffering throughout the northwest Saturday night and Sunday.

In the Twin Cities "black snow," dust from the northwest, blew over the territory much of Sunday. Some snow accompanied the gale.

Gusts of wind damaged trees, broke a number of plate glass windows and hampered traffic in the cities.

15 YEAR OLD DISPUTE OVER 100 POUND FISH RESULTS IN 2 DEATHS

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 20.—(UP)—A 15-year-old dispute over a 100-pound fish catch resulted yesterday in the deaths of two fishermen and the filing of two murder charges against a third.

Fifteen years ago George Lay and George Elliott were members of a fishing party. A catfish weighing 100 pounds was caught on a trout line and both men claimed the fish.
The dispute claim remained unsettled and led to considerable ill-feeling.

Last Friday Lay, Elliott and Ross
Gustin went on another fishing party.
The disputed "catch" again was mentioned, it is alleged, and Lay and Gustin were shot and killed.
Arrest of Elliott followed.

A Local
Corporation

A corporation is a convenient method of holding property, someone has said.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is thus "convenient" to more than 55,900 people who have elected to invest their savings in a great enterprise.

Men and women from every walk of life are shareholders in this corporation. Their number is equal to the population of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a goodly city. If they were grouped together in a city of shareholders, its population would be as varied as any other city's—numbering people of all ages, occupations and fortunes.

A great many of the 55,900 shareholders of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) would find it impossible to own any sort of business individually. They have only small amounts of money to invest, earned by hard work and saved by thrift and sacrifice.

Yet in cooperation with other stockholders of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) they are able to own a business that covers 10 states and serves 30 million people.

They are able to share in the earnings of the large scale production of a well-run, efficient business.

They are able to invest their money as securely and profitably as men of larger means.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is more than a method of holding property which 55,900 people have found convenient.

It is a method of pooling energy and interests, as well as money, to the advantage of all concerned.

29,573 men and women, 15,325 of whom are stockholders, give their time and effort, and wholehearted loyalty to the work of this corporation.

Their combined energies accomplish an enormous task and earn for them the rewards they have a right to expect.

Opportunities are unlimited in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). Promotions are won by ability and effort. This democratic policy and the size of the organization give each individual a chance to invest his ability where it will accomplish most and earn a proportionate reward.

The money of stockholders, the effort and ability of employees are combined in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to serve 30 million people in the Middle West.

The great group that owns it—the great group that operates it—have assumed the obligation of supplying the motorists of the Middle West with petroleum products of unquestioned quality at prices which are reasonable and fair.

They discharge this obligation with precision, enthusiasm and integrity of purpose.

A Local
Corporation

A corporation is a convenient method of holding property, someone has said.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is thus "convenient" to more than 55,900 people who have elected to invest their savings in a great enterprise.

Men and women from every walk of life are shareholders in this corporation. Their number is equal to the population of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a goodly city. If they were grouped together in a city of shareholders, its population would be as varied as any other city's—numbering people of all ages, occupations and fortunes.

A great many of the 55,900 shareholders of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) would find it impossible to own any sort of business individually. They have only small amounts of money to invest, earned by hard work and saved by thrift and sacrifice.

Yet in cooperation with other stockholders of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) they are able to own a business that covers 10 states and serves 30 million people.

They are able to share in the earnings of the large scale production of a well-run, efficient business.

They are able to invest their money as securely and profitably as men of larger means.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is more than a method of holding property which 55,900 people have found convenient.

It is a method of pooling energy and interests, as well as money, to the advantage of all concerned.

29,573 men and women, 15,325 of whom are stockholders, give their time and effort, and whole-hearted loyalty to the work of this corporation.

Their combined energies accomplish an enormous task and earn for them the rewards they have a right to expect.

Opportunities are unlimited in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). Promotions are won by ability and effort. This democratic policy and the size of the organization give each individual a chance to invest his ability where it will accomplish most and earn a proportionate reward.

The money of stockholders, the effort and ability of employees are combined in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to serve 30 million people in the Middle West.

The great group that owns it—the great group that operates it—have assumed the obligation of supplying the motorists of the Middle West with petroleum products of unquestioned quality at prices which are reasonable and fair.

They discharge this obligation with precision, enthusiasm and integrity of purpose.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

The Vasquez ranch is coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco boss. Vasquez won't sell. Buckwell and lawyer, Brandon, plan to void Vasquez land grant. Brandon's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores, Vasquez's beautiful granddaughter, and wants Vasquez of plot. Vasquez spurns earning and informs Terry that Dolores must marry young Spaniard. Terry, heartbroken, goes on spree. Dolores seeks Terry in Frisco's Barbary Coast and is disillusioned. Buckwell meets Dolores and is intrigued. He lures her to Frisco under guise of aiding. Terry saves Dolores and beats Buckwell. Terry is forgiven and takes Dolores home after disclosing that Buckwell is the one trying to evict them.

All three of them, suddenly startled by a noise in the patio, turned toward the doorway to see what was happening. The servant rushed in and stopping before Dolores quickly crossed himself and gasped several times for breath before he could speak.

"They come!" he managed to say. "They carry chains—they drive poles into—the ground by the graves!"

"Hush!" silenced Dolores, with a quick glance toward her Grandfather, who was still dozing at the far end of the big room.

"When did they come?" broke in Terry in an undertone.

"Only now, Senor—there are many of them. And, trembling excitedly, he crossed himself again.

"What is the trouble? Who has come? What do they want?" Don Luis knew nothing about the threat to confiscate the Rancho and was completely mystified by the servant's announcement and the alarmed understanding of Dolores and Terry. He stood with mouth agape waiting vainly for someone to explain.

"Some men have come who have no right to be here," explained Terry briefly. "I'll go out and see about it." He put a comforting hand on Dolores' arm for a moment. "It would be unwise to alarm your Grandfather unnecessarily."

"Wait, Senor—" commanded Don Luis, stepping forward authoritatively. "It is my place to intercede for my host, and defend his honor if need be." It was a grand gesture. He was all puffed up with his own importance.

Before Terry could stop him he strode from the room.

"Won't you please go!" Dolores clutched Terry's hands in her excitement, and he was strangely happy to discover that her trust and confidence were in him rather than Don Luis.

"Of course, sweetheart!" And because their love was so new and they thought no one was looking they stole a kiss.

Reluctantly Terry left her, but before he had crossed the patio Dolores called out, "Wait—I'm coming, too!" And she raced after him.

Her ungarded shout awakened Vasquez from his nap with a start. Listening intently and looking all around, he gradually became more thoroughly aroused. Instinct warned that something of importance was occurring. Tossing aside the robes that Dolores had covered over him, he stood up and leaning against the chair for support, looked around the room. His gaze settled on the cowering servant by the doorway.

"What has happened?" Vasquez demanded in a dazed, sleepy voice. "Senor, there are men outside measuring the land—they think it is theirs." The old servant had been a part of the small household for so long that he knew all about their reduced circumstances and present difficulty.

"So—" exclaimed Vasquez fiercely, "they have come!" His sleep bewildered brain tried to reason things out, and he wondered what had happened to the friend who was going to intercede in their behalf. It was a merciful blessing that he was ignorant of Dolores' trip into San Francisco with Buckwell. The old man's head went up and weakness vanished with his rising indignation.

The Vasquez name and honor were being desecrated; property rights of his first Spanish ancestors in America were being ignored, and all because he was old and alone.

The sagging lines in Vasquez's face became set by the sheer strength and power of his determination. His narrow, drooping shoulders lifted and blurred eyes took on a fierce glint.

"They cannot compel me to leave the home of my fathers. What has happened to the laws created for man's protection?" Vasquez muttered to himself, although the frightened servant cowering in the corner nodded silent agreement to the master he had known since childhood. With lengthened, tottering stride Vasquez strode to the fireplace and lifted his great sword from its niche above the mantle. His thin, colorless lips kissed the beloved inscription on the hilt and the white head bowed as if in prayer.

"A Vasquez Avenges a Vasquez!" he said, with a spurt of his youthful vigor, and strode out through the patio, grimly determined to defend his rights.

In the meantime Don Luis approached the surveying crew as they were driving a stake into the hallowed ground of the Vasquez burial plot.

"Stop!" he commanded, holding up a protesting hand as he drew near.

The men looked at him, then at each other as if to say, "Well, what have we here?" They had never come across such a romantic figure in real life.

"As the friend and protector of the noble House of Vasquez," said Don Luis to one of the crew, "I demand that you retreat at once." Drawing himself up with assumed dignity, he scowled menacingly.

The hard boiled Irishman who had been sent along with the surveying crew to drive stakes shifted his quid from one cheek to the other, sized up Don Luis from head to foot and finally spoke through a broad grin, "Aw, beat it—ye young garric hound."

Don Luis's fiery Latin temperament flared and he emitted a volley of Spanish curses.

Forgetting that he had been instructed only to drive stakes, the big Irishman stepped forward to meet the attack with a brawny arm and a hard looking fist.

Don Luis retreated with a few hurried steps, but his high heels caught in the surveyor's chain between the stakes and he fell backward. It was the most ungraceful exit he had ever made. Money, pleasure and dignity were the three most desirable things in Don Luis's code of living and he suffered considerably when the "coarse laborers," as he mentally termed them, broke into spontaneous laughter. Quickly scrambling to his feet he assumed an injured air and hoped that Dolores and Terry had not seen the "accident."

They had, but were too intent upon the issue at hand to laugh or pause and offer sympathy. The one thing they realized was that Don Luis had not been successful in his effort with the men.

"May I ask if you have legal authority to run lines through this property?" asked Terry of the surveyors.

"Sure—we got our orders today to come right out."

All of the men realized that they were dealing with a different character from Don Luis, and the young spokesman did not hesitate to answer truthfully. Besides, he had caught a glimpse of Dolores standing by Terry's side and was willing to prolong the interview if it meant a longer chance to see her. He did not know girls could be so gorgeous.

"Have you a written permit?" questioned Terry.

"Yes, but it's only temporary." He felt in several pockets before he found it, then continued, "I'm told it will be made permanent this afternoon."

Terry accepted the paper and looked it over, a worried frown appearing as he read.

Dolores looked over his shoulder and after a moment asked softly, "What does it mean?"

"It is next to the last step necessary to allow the work of destruction to go ahead."

Terry spoke in a low voice, but the men could hear. In fact, none of them could look away from Dolores. Her beauty was like a miracle, and against the background of the old rancho she seemed a part of another world. The men also saw that her chin quivered and her eyes filled with tears when the young man explained the permit.

CONSTIPATION IS OFTEN UNEXPECTED

Even Regular Bowel Movements May Not Be Enough

90% of modern city people are victims of constipation. Some know what is wrong, because their bowel movements are irregular. Others have the same symptoms, but because their bowel movements are regular, do not know they suffer from intestinal poisoning. In these cases the movements, although regular, are not complete, and decayed material remains in the intestine to poison the entire system.

In either case the results are bad. Headaches, loss of vitality, sallow cheeks, nervousness, sleeplessness, increased susceptibility to serious diseases which may result in premature disability or death—all come from constipation caused by modern soft diet and soft life.

The remedy is simple. Add bulk and roughage to your diet—it kept primitive man healthy, and it will do the same for you. Don't form the dangerous laxative habit—use roughage, the natural cure. The best kind is the true 100% bran, Pillsbury's Health Bran. It furnishes the bulk which is so vital to your health.

Warning—be sure you get natural 100% bran—Pillsbury's Health Bran. Because it is unadulterated, uncooked and unsweetened, it really does the work—it gives you the full, gentle, natural laxative action of the unbroken flakes. Use it to prepare delicious foods, muffins, tea-cakes, apple cake, macaroons, doughnuts, etc.

That's the way to eat bran—your own some baking does not crumble it and reduce its laxative value.

Eat it three times a day—delightful recipes are printed on every package.

Pillsbury's Health Bran
the 100% bran

ing engineers association to be so honored.

After his attendance at the institute Mr. Zapffe will attend to business matters in Philadelphia and Cleveland

Luis knew nothing about the threat to confiscate the Rancho and was completely mystified by the servant's announcement and the alarmed understanding of Dolores and Terry. He stood with mouth agape waiting vainly for someone to explain.

"Some men have come who have no right to be here," explained Terry briefly. "I'll go out and see about it." He put a comforting hand on Dolores's arm for a moment. "It would be unwise to alarm your Grandfather unnecessarily."

"Wait, Senor—" commanded Don Luis, stepping forward authoritatively. "It is my place to intercede for my host, and defend his honor if need be." It was a grand gesture. He was all puffed up with his own importance.

Before Terry could stop him he strode from the room.

"Won't you please go?" Dolores clutched Terry's hands in her excitement, and he was strangely happy to discover that her trust and confidence were in him rather than Don Luis.

"Of course, sweetheart!" And because their love was so new and they thought no one was looking they stole a kiss.

Reluctantly Terry left her, but before he had crossed the patio Dolores called out, "Wait—I'm coming, too!" And she raced after him.

Her unguarded shout awakened Vasquez from his nap with a start. Listening intently and looking all around, he gradually became more thoroughly aroused. Instinct warned that something of importance was occurring. Tossing aside the robes that Dolores had covered over him, he stood up and leaning against the chair for support, looked around the room. His gaze settled on the cowering servant by the doorway.

"What has happened?" Vasquez demanded in a dazed, sleepy voice. "Senor, there are men outside measuring the land—they think it is theirs." The old servant had been a part of the small household for so long that he knew all about their reduced circumstances and present difficulty.

"So—" exclaimed Vasquez fiercely. "they have come!" His sleep-bewildered brain tried to reason things out, and he wondered what had happened to the friend who was going to intercede in their behalf. It was a merciful blessing that he was ignorant of Dolores's trip into San Francisco with Buckwell. The old man's head went up and weakness vanished with his rising indignation.

The Vasquez name and honor were being desecrated; property rights of his first Spanish ancestors in America were being ignored, and all because he was old and alone.

The sagging lines in Vasquez's face became set by the sheer strength and power of his determination. His narrow, drooping shoulders lifted and blurred eyes took on a fierce glint.

"They cannot compel me to leave the home of my fathers. What has happened to the laws created for man's protection?" Vasquez muttered to himself, although the frightened servant cowering in the corner nodded silent agreement to the master he had known since childhood. With lengthened, tottering stride Vasquez strode to the fireplace and lifted his great sword from its niche above the mantle. His thin, colorless lips kissed the beloved inscription on the hilt and the white head bowed as if in prayer.

"A Vasquez Avenges a Vasquez!" he said, with a spurt of his youthful vigor, and strode out through the patio, grimly determined to defend his rights.

In the meantime Don Luis approached the surveying crew as they were driving a stake into the hallowed ground of the Vasquez burial plot.

"Stop!" he commanded, holding up a protesting hand as he drew near.

The men looked at him, then at each other as if to say, "Well, what have we here?" They had never come across such a romantic figure in real life.

"As the friend and protector of the noble House of Vasquez," said Don Luis to one of the crew, "I demand that you retreat at once." Drawing himself up with assumed dignity, he scowled menacingly.

The hard-boiled Irishman who had been sent along with the surveying crew to drive stakes shifted his quid from one cheek to the other, sized up Don Luis from head to foot and finally spoke through a broad grin. "Aw, beat it—ye young garlic hound."

Don Luis's fiery Latin temperament flared and he emitted a volley of Spanish curses.

Forgetting that he had been instructed only to drive stakes, the big Irishman stepped forward to meet the attack with a brawny arm and a hard looking fist.

Don Luis retreated with a few hurried steps, but his high heels caught in the surveyor's chain between the stakes and he fell backward. It was the most ungraceful exit he had ever made. Money, pleasure and dignity were the three most desirable things in Don Luis's code of living and he suffered considerably when the "coarse laborer," as he mentally termed them, broke into spontaneous laughter.

Quickly scrambling to his feet he assumed an injured air and hoped that Dolores and Terry had not seen the "accident."

They had, but were too intent upon the issue at hand to laugh or pause and offer sympathy. The one thing they realized was that Don Luis had not been successful in his effort with the men.

"May I ask if you have legal authority to run lines through this property?" asked Terry of the surveyors.

"Sure—we got our orders today to come right out."

All of the men realized that they were dealing with a different character from Don Luis, and the young spokesman did not hesitate to answer truthfully. Besides, he had caught a glimpse of Dolores standing by Terry's side and was willing to prolong the interview if it meant a longer chance to see her. He did not know girls could be so gorgeous.

"Have you a written permit?" questioned Terry.

"Yes, but it's only temporary."

He felt in several pockets before he found it, then continued, "I'm told it will be made permanent this afternoon."

Terry accepted the paper and looked it over, a worried frown appearing as he read.

Dolores looked over his shoulder and after a moment asked softly, "What does it mean?"

"It is next to the last step necessary to allow the work of destruction to go ahead."

Terry spoke in a low voice, but the men could hear. In fact, none of them could look away from Dolores. Her beauty was like a miracle, and against the background of the old rancho she seemed a part of another world. The men also saw that her chin quivered and her eyes filled with tears when the young man explained the permit.

CONSTIPATION IS OFTEN UNEXPECTED

90% of modern city people are victims of constipation. Some know what is wrong, because their bowel movements are irregular. Others have the same symptoms, but because their bowel movements are regular, do not know they suffer from intestinal poisoning. In these cases the movements, although regular, are not complete, and decayed material remains in the intestine to poison the entire system.

In either case the results are bad. Headaches, loss of vitality, sallow cheeks, nervousness, sleeplessness, increased susceptibility to serious diseases which may result in premature disability or death—all come from constipation caused by modern soft diet and soft life.

The remedy is simple. Add bulk and roughage to your diet—it kept primitive man healthy, and it will do the same for you. Don't form the dangerous laxative habit—use roughage, the natural cure. The best kind is the true 100% bran, Pillsbury's Health Bran. It furnishes the bulk which is so vital to your health.

Warning—be sure you get natural 100% bran—Pillsbury's Health Bran because it is unadulterated, uncooked and unsweetened. It really does the work—it gives you the full, gentle natural laxative action of the unbroken flakes. Use it to prepare delicious foods, muffins, tea-cakes, apple cake, macaroons, doughnuts, etc. That's the way to eat bran—your own home baking does not crumble it and reduce its laxative value.

Eat it three times a day—delightful recipes are printed on every package.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

WE have read some of Paul Wiltach's contributions to the history of George Washington, in which he presumes to take the Father of His Country from off his pedestal.

Washington had physical and moral stamina, admits Wiltach. He was a sport-loving, fun-loving, convivial, high-spirited, sensible, laughing friend, in addition to the sterner and more profound phases of his character.

Wiltach continues in his review published in the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

Washington, the statesman, seldom let down from the quiet dignity that marked his official life. The populace that so admired and worshiped the man who led his countrymen to independence and became the first president little suspected, perhaps, that beneath his mask of seriousness, the Father of His Country was as human as the next man, probably more so.

It is true, of course, that Washington at the peak of his career had little time to indulge in pleasantries, that his days were filled with the sober business of standing at the helm of the American colonies during their first troublous days as a republic. The burden on his war-weary shoulders was a heavy one and it is inevitable that he has come down through history as a soldier-statesman on a pedestal.

With care Washington selected the letters which he allowed to survive him, by which he wished to be judged. From them he eliminated any with a touch of sentiment or humor. He even destroyed every letter he could lay hands on which had passed between him and Mrs. Washington, or any other woman.

What he began the first editor of his writings, Jared Sparks, finished. If Washington had tried to squeeze all the humanities out of his letters, Sparks, if an Irish bull be permitted, squeezed the rest. He corrected the general's spelling, his capitalization, his choice of words, and even his phrases. Actually he starched the general stiff. Then came Ford, who reverted to the originals and gave a new version of the letters, literal and real, with all the starch left out. So much for Mr. Wiltach.

We read a better account of Washington in the Minneapolis Tribune from the pen of George Creel, who describes Washington as a man with his back to the wall, a gallant leader whose iron will kept up the morale of his suffering soldiers. When you read what Washington and his men endured, you can see why lines of care marked his face.

From the moment he reached Boston in July, 1775, Washington was put to work making bricks without straw, for the army that he found was an undisciplined rabble, lacking money, food, clothing, rifles and ammunition. During the eight months he sat helpless under the guns of Gage and Howe, while congress screamed at his inaction, there were but thirty barrels of powder in the camp. As fast as he drilled the raw militia into some sort of shape, enlistments expired and the work had to be done all over again with new batches of unruly recruits.

Congress, fearful that "military power might overbalance the civil," only permitted enlistments for four months, making demoralization a continued process, and as if to make discipline impossible, no soldier could be punished without the consent of the state from which he came.

Washington, going into winter quarters at Valley Forge, was given neither money, food, clothing nor blankets. Shoeless men left bloody footprints in the snow; half-naked wretches huddled about fires through the bitter nights that they might not freeze in their coverless bunks, while starvation vied with smallpox in taking human life.

Then it was, says Creel, that joy went out of George Washington's life forever; that laughter left his heart, never to return, and that sadness reset his face in those iron lines his portraits show. His own private fortune had been pledged to the limit; Robert Morris's exchequer was exhausted; the intrigues and criminal ineptitudes of congress defeated every hope and plan, and as he fell on his knees under the midnight sky, it was from a broken, bleeding heart that he cried to God.

Nor did peace bring him rest. For eight years his shoulders had borne the full burden of a people's revolution, for eight years politicians had made a runaway of his proud heart; and now the one passion left alive was to gain the quiet of Mount Vernon that his horses and hounds might let him forget the meannesses of men.

Yet when he saw the country plunging to ruin—states fighting, commerce dead, open talk of foreign alliances—conscience forced him to give months to the formation of a constitution that would provide a central government with strength, power and recognized authorities.

The four years that followed were no less packed with drudgery and heart break than the Revolution itself, for it was a brand-new government that Washington had to fashion, a nation that he had to create, an inanimate constitution that had to be given life.

Because of his reverence for his high office, and his simplicity and dignity, he was assailed as "monarchical" and accused of wanting to make himself a king. Yet when he announced intention not to accept re-election even his enemies joined in begging him to serve a second term; and though his soul sickened at the prospect, he was forced to realize that his work was not yet done.

The continued opposition to every domestic policy seemed to plumb all possible depths of hate and bitterness, but it was as nothing compared to the wave of insane anger that swept the country when Washington refused to join the French revolutionists in their war on England, Spain, and Holland.

Gripped by a species of ungovernable hysteria, people cried out against him as one who ought to be hanged, and cursed the president who would not let America plunge into the bath of blood.

Even so, he could have had a third term for the taking—beneath surface froth there was still sanity and understanding in the country—but Washington felt that his release had come at last. He knew he had built well, the state stood bedecked in honor and integrity and now that duty no longer called, now that his conscience freed him, he turned to Mount Vernon with a great gladness, pitifully eager for its peace. But abuse followed him even to that sanctuary.

And when one considers all that Washington did for his country, few people are aware that he served without pay as general in the army and as president. The Continental congress was too poor to pay him. If ever a man loved his country, it was Washington, and we should gather renewed inspiration every year when we contemplate, on his anniversary, the deeds he wrought.

TAX reduction bill in congress is evidently definitely shelved until March 15.

Quality Is Our Failure Insurance

A successful merchant once said that he considered honesty the greatest single factor for success in retailing. "Build integrity into your business" he advised, "and you not only safeguard it but your contribution to the community you live in is immeasurable."

Wise words! And that is one of the reasons why we pay so much attention to the quality of the goods we sell. It is so easy to skimp on a lining, or substitute inferior leather in the inner sole of a shoe. But then we would not be running an honest business, and it would gradually crumble into ruins.

Selling honest merchandise at a fair price is more than an ideal with us. It is our "insurance policy" against failure.

Washington had physical and moral stamina, admits Wiltach. He was a sport-loving, fun-loving, convivial, high-spirited, sensible, laughing friend, in addition to the sterner and more profound phases of his character.

Wiltach continues in his review published in the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

Washington, the statesman, seldom let down from the quiet dignity that marked his official life. The populace that so admired and worshiped the man who led his countrymen to independence and became the first president little suspected, perhaps, that beneath his mask of seriousness, the Father of His Country was as human as the next man, probably more so.

It is true, of course, that Washington at the peak of his career had little time to indulge in pleasantries, that his days were filled with the sober business of standing at the helm of the American colonies during their first troublous days as a republic. The burden on his war-weary shoulders was a heavy one and it is inevitable that he has come down through history as a soldier-statesman on a pedestal.

With care Washington selected the letters which he allowed to survive him, by which he wished to be judged. From them he eliminated any with a touch of sentiment or humor. He even destroyed every letter he could lay hands on which had passed between him and Mrs. Washington, or any other woman.

What he began the first editor of his writings, Jared Sparks, finished. If Washington had tried to squeeze all the humanities out of his letters, Sparks, if an Irish bull be permitted, squeezed the rest. He corrected the general's spelling, his capitalization, his choice of words, and even his phrases. Actually he starched the general stiff. Then came Ford, who reverted to the originals and gave a new version of the letters, literal and real, with all the starch left out. So much for Mr. Wiltach.

We read a better account of Washington in the Minneapolis Tribune from the pen of George Creel, who describes Washington as a man with his back to the wall, a gallant leader whose iron will kept up the morale of his suffering soldiers. When you read what Washington and his men endured, you can see why lines of care marked his face.

From the moment he reached Boston in July, 1775, Washington was put to work making bricks without straw, for the army that he found was an undisciplined rabble, lacking money, food, clothing, rifles and ammunition. During the eight months he sat helpless under the guns of Gage and Howe, while congress screamed at his inaction, there were but thirty barrels of powder in the camp. As fast as he drilled the raw militia into some sort of shape, enlistments expired and the work had to be done all over again with new batches of unruly recruits.

Congress, fearful that "military power might overbalance the civil," only permitted enlistments for four months, making demoralization a continued process, and as if to make discipline impossible, no soldier could be punished without the consent of the state from which he came.

Washington, going into winter quarters at Valley Forge, was given neither money, food, clothing nor blankets. Shoeless men left bloody footprints in the snow; half-naked wretches huddled about fires through the bitter nights that they might not freeze in their coverless bunks, while starvation vied with smallpox in taking human life.

Then it was, says Creel, that joy went out of George Washington's life forever; that laughter left his heart, never to return, and that sadness reset his face in those iron lines his portraits show. His own private fortune had been pledged to the limit; Robert Morris's exchequer was exhausted; the intrigues and criminal inebrieties of congress defeated every hope and plan, and as he fell on his knees under the midnight sky, it was from a broken, bleeding heart that he cried to God.

Nor did peace bring him rest. For eight years his shoulders had borne the full burden of a people's revolution, for eight years politicians had made a runaway of his proud heart; and now the one passion left alive to was to gain the quiet of Mount Vernon that his horses and hounds might let him forget the meannesses of men.

Yet when he saw the country plunging to ruin—states fighting, commerce dead, open talk of foreign alliances—conscience forced him to give months to the formation of a constitution that would provide a central government with strength, power and recognized authorities.

The four years that followed were no less packed with drudgery and heart break than the Revolution itself, for it was a brand-new government that Washington had to fashion, a nation that he had to create, an inanimate constitution that had to be given life.

Because of his reverence for his high office, and his simplicity and dignity, he was assailed as "monarchical" and accused of wanting to make himself a king. Yet when he announced intention not to accept re-election even his enemies joined in begging him to serve a second term; and though his soul sickened at the prospect, he was forced to realize that his work was not yet done.

The continued opposition to every domestic policy seemed to plumb all possible depths of hate and bitterness, but it was as nothing compared to the wave of insane anger that swept the country when Washington refused to join the French revolutionists in their war on England, Spain, and Holland.

Gripped by a species of ungovernable hysteria, people cried out against him as one who ought to be hanged, and cursed the president who would not let America plunge into the bath of blood.

Even so, he could have had a third term for the taking—beneath surface froth there was still sanity and understanding in the country—but Washington felt that his release had come at last. He knew he had builded well, the state stood bedecked in honor and integrity and now that duty no longer called, now that his conscience freed him, he turned to Mount Vernon with a great gladness, pitifully eager for its peace. But abuse followed him even to that sanctuary.

And when one considers all that Washington did for his country, few people are aware that he served without pay as general in the army and as president. The Continental congress was too poor to pay him. If ever a man loved his country, it was Washington, and we should gather renewed inspiration every year when we contemplate, on his anniversary, the deeds he wrought.

TAX reduction bill in congress is evidently definitely shelved until March 15.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Quality Is Our Failure Insurance

A successful merchant once said that he considered honesty the greatest single factor for success in retailing. "Build integrity into your business" he advised, "and you not only safeguard it but your contribution to the community you live in is immeasurable."

Wise words! And that is one of the reasons why we pay so much attention to the quality of the goods we sell. It is so easy to skimp on a lining, or substitute inferior leather in the inner sole of a shoe. But then we would not be running an honest business, and it would gradually crumble into ruins.

Selling honest merchandise at a fair price is more than an ideal with us. It is our "insurance policy" against failure.

SCOUTS GIVE COURT OF HONOR SALUTE

Boys and Parents Express Thanks to Walter F. Wieland, Retiring Chairman

C. A. RYAN, NEW CHAIRMAN

Juvenile Delinquency Decreases as Scout Movement Branches Out

While the boy scout movement may not have been entirely responsible for it, it is a significant fact that juvenile delinquency in the county of Crow Wing has decreased amazingly in the last two years. Walter F. Wieland, told a representative audience Saturday night at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in attendance at a Court of Honor, the best in months.

The occasion was one for which scouts from every troop in the city, their parents, and interested citizens turned out to bid farewell to the chairman of the court of honor and express their thanks to him for his untiring efforts in aiding the boy scout movement during his term of office.

Walter F. Wieland, who will leave shortly for St. Paul where he will take up his new duties as assistant attorney general, presided at his last court of honor.

He was the recipient of a grand scout salute by boy scouts present and was accorded praise by other members of the court of honor.

Clem A. Ryan who has acted as assistant chairman of the court was named chairman to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Wieland's departure.

He also was accorded a grand scout salute.

Mr. Wieland implored the citizens of Brainerd to give their whole-hearted support to the scout movement as it was one of high ideals, of particular importance to the welfare of the youth of the city and county in preparing them for young manhood.

"A peculiar situation has arisen in regard to interest in the scout organization in the city of Brainerd," said Mr. Wieland, "there has been a noticeable cutting down in the financial contribution. The problem is not with the scouts. The boys are more interested in the movement this year than ever before but the parents do not seem as interested. The area during the past two years has been enlarged and the expense distributed in a greater area. In spite of this Brainerd is having trouble in raising its quota. I am not making an appeal for funds but am advising the people here as to just what the situation is."

"The scout organization is a worthwhile one and doing a fine bit of work. There has been less juvenile delinquency in the past two years in the county than before. I am not going to say that the scout movement has been responsible for this but it is significant nevertheless. It has been a great pleasure for me to have acted as chairman of the court of honor. I wish to thank Mr. Ryan and Dr. Cohen for the valuable assistance they have rendered me in conducting the court of honor. I am sincerely and earnestly interested in seeing the scout movement succeed."

Mr. Wieland had announced that Clem Ryan had been appointed to act as chairman of the court of honor for the remainder of the season.

"When you see boys working eagerly to gain their merit badges, it is sufficient to convince the most skeptical sort of a mind that there must be something big in the scout movement," said Mr. Ryan, "the organization has been a decided factor in keeping the boy on the straight course in life. Among the criminally inclined boys of the country you very rarely find a boy scout. The scout movement is good for the boy, and these boys here tonight are living proofs of that example. If the boy scout movement did nothing more than keep one boy out of the reformatory, it would be justified. I will go one step farther and say that if the movement did no more than keeping boys from lying it would be justified a hundred fold.

"Walter F. Wieland has presided over the court of honor for the past two years. He has filled the position in the most satisfactory manner and has done a great deal for the scouts that is not connected with his work as chairman. He has counseled and advised the officers of the boy scouts of this area time and again, and is deserving of all the praise and thanks the boys and their parents can extend to him. I wish to publicly express my appreciation to Mr. Wieland for his efforts and also to Perry Newton, your scout executive."

"I can emphatically say that the boy scout movement did not amount to a row of pins until Perry Newton came to the city. We should not allow this opportunity to pass without also extending thanks to him."

Twenty four scouts received merit badges, seven second class badges, nine first class badges and Malcolm Ellison was awarded with the bronze palm, emblematic of winning 26 merit badges. Troop five carried off honors at the court of honor and were awarded the scout pennant.

Former Brainerd Lady Injured When Car Avoiding Collision Heads Into Building

HUSBAND ALSO HURT

Accident Occurred on Return Trip to San Jose From San Francisco, Calif.

From a private letter received in this city it is learned that Mrs. John Shepherd, of San Jose, Calif., formerly Miss Vera Nevers, of this city, was quite seriously injured in an auto accident on Saturday, February 4.

The accident occurred while Mrs. Shepherd with her family was returning to her home in San Jose from San Francisco. Mr. Shepherd was driving when two Stanford university students cut in ahead of him so closely that in order to avoid crashing into them he turned off the pavement and in doing so ran into soft sand and gravel in which he went into a skid and crashed into a building demolishing his car, a big Studebaker sedan.

Mr. Shepherd suffered a slight concussion of the brain and was unconscious for 18 hours. Mrs. Shepherd was injured internally and was so badly cut about the head that she was in the hospital for 10 days. Her daughter Miss Myrne was cut and bruised about the head. The only one who escaped uninjured was her son John, who took charge of the situation, secured help and telephoned for the doctors and nurses to care for the injured.

Mrs. Shepherd's many old friends in the city are glad to hear she is recovering nicely.

JOE STETCHER TO WRESTLE LEWIS TONIGHT

WORLD HEAVY WEIGHT CROWN TO BE CONTESTED

BOTH MEN HAVE PUT IN MORE THAN A MONTH OF HARD TRAINING

ENCOUNTER WILL CULMINATE YEARS OF BITTER ARGUMENT

By HECTOR PERRIOR
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 20.—(UP)—The ultimate of modern wrestling—such as it is—will be reached to-night when Scissors Joe Stetcher and Ed Strangler Lewis grapple here for the world heavyweight championship.

Both men have put in more than a month of training in preparation for an encounter which will culminate years of acrimonious argument between the two and their respective followers. Stetcher, the champion, will weigh approximately 225 pounds and Lewis about 227 lbs.

Open bitterness between Stetcher and Lewis dates back about four years when Stetcher took the title from Stanislaus Zyzsko who defeated Wayne "Big" Munn after Munn hurled Lewis from the ring in Kansas City and allegedly "robbed" him of the title.

The two mat Leviathans will start tonight's match virtually at scratch, however, as each has won an equal number of decisions from the other and draws terminated the other matches. In view of their long training grind, a little more than usual confidence emanated today from the quarters of both men.

Stetcher is expected to rely mainly on a vice-like leg scissors hold to batter down Lewis' resistance and pave the way for a fall, while Lewis probably will resort chiefly to a skull-crushing headlock for which his powerful arms are famous.

Harry Sharpe, St. Louis, will be third man in the ring for the main match and will be charged with preventing the use of the notorious strangle hold and generally guarding against a possible foul. If a man is deliberately hurled from the ring and injured so he cannot continue he will be declared winner of the match; otherwise he will win one fall.

The title match—two out of three falls—is scheduled to begin promptly at 10 P. M. C. S. T., with 20 minute rest periods between falls.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The dream of race fans, a totalisator for pari-mutuel betting machines which will show at a glance the prices on offer against each entry, has come true at last.

To the ingenuity of an English school-master, we are indebted for this machine, which has solved a problem the shrewdest of turf men believed insoluble.

One result of the invention may be to revolutionize racing in the inventor's country. Totalisators, as they are called in England, may replace bookmakers, to the satisfaction of everyone except the latter.

Orallists at last may be dispensed with, except for the benefit of those backers who prefer to gamble on the odds they can obtain rather than secure a fair starting price.

The objection to pari-mutuel machines as operated at present has been that it is impossible for a better to learn the odds against the horse he wishes to back without running from one board to another, doing intricate sums. By the time the sum is finished, fluctuations in the odds have upset the calculations and rendered them useless.

Mr. R. M. Hamilton, formerly a mathematics master at Malvern College, who was employed in the Ballistics office of the British Admiralty during the World War, has invented and patented a "robot bookmaker" which overcomes just these difficulties.

On each of Mr. Hamilton's machines there is room for the prices against 40 starters, sufficient for any race.

Instead of showing how many tickets have been sold, as do our present pari-mutuel machines, the super-totalisator shows the prevailing odds against each entry. These figures change constantly with the flow of money wagered with the "iron men," but are always accurate and informative.

Moreover, winnings can be paid instantly after a race, since the invention automatically deducts the five per cent and registers the proper odds.

And the machines can be made so portable that only a few would be needed!

There seems at first glance to be one flaw in Mr. Hamilton's machine as far as its practicability is concerned.

It is so constructed that a backer can have his choice between the starting price or the prevailing odds at the moment he makes his wager.

A ticket can be stamped either starting price or with the odds of the moment.

I have not gone into this thing very thoroughly, but offhand, I should say that I could take $100 and a couple of strong elbows and break any "robot bookmaker" in the business.

In a two-horse race, $5 bet on Horse A and $45 on Horse B would make the former an 8 to 1 shot. Then the bets reversed at the odds, the first bet having been made at starting price, would allow the gambler to have $45 at 8 to 1 on one horse, and $45 on the other at even money.

If you see what I mean?

RECORDS CRASH IN PIN PLAY AT ST. PAUL TOURNEY

INTERNATIONAL BOWLING ASSOCIATION TOURNAMENT BEING HELD

KARTHEISER, CHICAGO, MAKES FIRST PERFECT SCORE ON SUNDAY

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 20.—(UP)—Records were sent crashing along with pins in the International Bowling Association tournament here during the past week.

An enviable mark was established by Frank Kartheiser, Chicago, who made the first perfect score Sunday in the history of the association on the noon shift. Kartheiser made 12 consecutive strikes while bowling in the doubles with S. Thoma.

The singles champion is E. Krems of Chicago, who broke the all-time I. B. A. singles with a total of 721. The previous record was 710, made in 1923 by Ken Seiple of Omaha.

Krems bowled 242 in the first game, 223 in the second game and 256 in the third.

E. Zajac of Chicago was second in the singles, F. Krescher Chicago finished third with 705 and H. Wenzel, Chicago, fourth with a score of 694.

The Andrews hotel team of Minneapolis was victorious in that competition with a total of 3,204. The Baby Ruth team of Chicago finished second with a total of 3,161.

The all-time doubles record was broken in the tournament by two teams. The best score of the tournament was made by B. Ritter and J. Urban with a total of 1,342. F. Jerzyk and F. Belt, Chicago, rolled 1,329 for second place. Krems and Hank Marino, Chicago, took third place with a total of 1,307.

First place in the all-events was taken by Kartheiser with a nine-game total of 2,089.

9 GAME SCHEDULE OF THE WEEK IS TO BEGIN TONIGHT

2 CONTESTS EXPECTED TO HAVE BEARING ON THE TITLE OF CONFERENCE

PURDUE MEETS MICHIGAN, AND WISCONSIN GOES TO IOWA

By BERT M. DENBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The busiest week of the Big Ten basketball season got under way today with the probability that this week's contests would settle the 1928 championship. The nine game schedule of the week was to begin tonight with two contests which were expected to have an important bearing on the title.

Purdue, favored to win the championship, meets Michigan at Lafayette and Wisconsin, Purdue's chief rival, goes to Iowa.

While the Boilermakers should win from Michigan, the possibility exists that the Wolverines might come through with a victory. 2 AMERICAN DRIVERS IN SPEED RECORD, DAYTONA

ATTEMPT TO BREAK 208.95602 MILE AN HOUR MADE BY CAPTAIN CAMPBELL

2 AMERICANS ARE J. M. WHITE OF PHILADELPHIA AND FRANK LOCKHART

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 20.—(UP)—Two American race drivers, one with a diminutive appearing machine, today prepared to make attempts to break the record of 208.95602 miles per hour established Sunday by Captain Malcolm Campbell of England over the Ormond-Daytona Beach course.

The two Americans are J. M. White of Philadelphia in a powerful 36 cylinder special design, and Frank Lockhart in a small two engine Stutz. White's machine has been barred by the A. A. A. but was expected to revise it to meet classifications.

Lockhart's machine is a pygmy beside White's big machine, and the great "Bluebird" which Campbell drove to victory yesterday. He has been able to exceed 180 miles an hour in tests and believed it would be able to break Campbell's record.

The British driver made brilliant runs in establishing his record, which broke that of a fellow Englishman, H. O. D. Seagrave. The beach was slightly rolling and there was a strong northeast wind blowing.

With a four mile start, and the wind at his back, Campbell sent his machine over the course at 215.7071 215.70713 miles per hour for a half mile. He turned about and went against the wind for the half mile at a speed of 199.66722 miles per hour.

At one time the tachometer of Campbell's machine registered 220 miles per hour, the British racer said.

Campbell's machine is equipped with motors similar to the newly designed airplane engines which took English flyers to speed success in the Schneider cup races last summer. He said he believed his motor car eventually would make 225 miles an hour and that he would attempt to break his own record when conditions were suited.

Several times Campbell was shaken from his position in the driver's seat as his machine hit rough stretches of the beach. Once his foot came from the accelerator and brakes, but he quickly regained control of the machine.

JOE STETCHER TO WRESTLE LEWIS TONIGHT

WORLD HEAVY WEIGHT CROWN TO BE CONTESTED

BOTH MEN HAVE PUT IN MORE THAN A MONTH OF HARD TRAINING

ENCOUNTER WILL CULMINATE
YEARS OF BITTER ARGU-MENT

By HECTOR PERRIOR
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 20.—(UP)—The ultimate of modern wrestling—such as it is—will be reached tonight when Scissors Joe Stetcher and Ed Strangler Lewis grapple here for the world heavyweight championship.

Both men have put in more than a month of training in preparation for an encounter which will culminate years of acrimonious argument between the two and their respective followers. Stetcher, the champion, will weigh approximately 225 pounds and Lewis about 227 lbs.

Open bitterness between Stetcher and Lewis dates back about four years when Stetcher took the title from Stanislaus Zyzszo who defeated Wayne "Big" Munn after Munn hurled Lewis from the ring in Kansas City and allegedly "robbed" him of the title.

The two mat Leviathans will start tonight's match virtually at scratch, however, as each has won an equal number of decisions from the other and draws terminated the other matches. In view of their long training grind, a little more than usual confidence emanated today from the quarters of both men.

Stetcher is expected to rely mainly on a vice-like leg scissors hold to batter down Lewis' resistance and pave the way for a fall, while Lewis probably will resort chiefly to a skull-crushing headlock for which his powerful arms are famous.

Harry Sharpe, St. Louis, will be third man in the ring for the main match and will be charged with preventing the use of the notorious strangle hold and generally guarding against a possible foul. If a man is deliberately hurled from the ring and injured so he cannot continue he will be declared winner of the match; otherwise he will win one fall.

The title match—two out of three falls—is scheduled to begin promptly at 10 P. M. C. S. T., with 20 minute rest periods between falls.

The dream of race fans, a totalisator for pari-mutuel betting machines which will show at a glance the prices on offer against each entry, has come true at last.

To the ingenuity of an English school-master, we are indebted for this machine, which has solved a problem the shrewdest of turf men believed insoluble.

One result of the invention may be to revolutionize racing in the inventor's country. Totalisators, as they are called in England, may replace bookmakers, to the satisfaction of everyone except the latter.

Oralists at last may be dispensed with, except for the benefit of those backers who prefer to gamble on the odds they can obtain rather than secure a fair starting price.

The objection to pari-mutuel machines as operated at present has been that it is impossible for a bettor to learn the odds against the horse he wishes to back without running from one board to another, doing intricate sums. By the time the sum is finished, fluctuations in the odds have upset the calculations and rendered them useless.

Mr. R. M. Hamilton, formerly a mathematics master at Malvern College, who was employed in the Ballistics office of the British Admiralty during the World War, has invented and patented a "robot bookmaker" which overcomes just these difficulties.

On each of Mr. Hamilton's machines there is room for the prices against 40 starters, sufficient for any race.

Instead of showing how many tickets have been sold, as do our present pari-mutuel machines, the super-totalisator shows the prevailing odds against each entry. These figures change constantly with the flow of money wagered with the "iron men," but are always accurate and informative.

Moreover, winnings can be paid instantly after a race, since the invention automatically deducts the five per cent and registers the proper odds.

And the machines can be made so portable that only a few would be needed!

There seems at first glance to be one flaw in Mr. Hamilton's machine as far as its practicability is concerned.

It is so constructed that a backer can have his choice between the starting price or the prevailing odds at the moment he makes his wager.

A ticket can be stamped either starting price or with the odds of the moment.

I have not gone into this thing very thoroughly, but offhand, I should say that I could take $100 and a couple of strong elbows and break any "robot bookmaker" in the business.

In a two-horse race, $5 bet on Horse A and $45 on Horse B would make the former an 8 to 1 shot. Then the bets reversed at the odds, the first bet having been made at starting price, would allow the gambler to have $45 at 8 to 1 on one horse, and $45 on the other at even money.

If you see what I mean?

KARTHEISER, CHICAGO, MAKES FIRST PERFECT SCORE ON SUNDAY

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 20.—(UP)—Records were sent crashing along with pins in the International Bowling Association tournament here during the past week.

An enviable mark was established by Frank Kartheiser, Chicago, who made the first perfect score Sunday in the history of the association on the noon shift. Kartheiser made 12 consecutive strikes while bowling in the doubles with S. Thoma.

Krems bowled 242 in the first game, 223 in the second game and 256 in the third.

E. Zajac of Chicago was second in the singles, F. Krescher Chicago finished third with 705 and H. Wenzholz, Chicago, fourth with a score of 694.

The Andrews hotel team of Minneapolis was victorious in that competition with a total of 3,204. The Baby Ruth team of Chicago finished second with a total of 3,161.

The all-time doubles record was broken in the tournament by two teams. The best score of the tournament was made by B. Ritter and J. Urban with a total of 1,342. F. Jerzyk and F. Belt, Chicago, rolled 1,329 for second place. Krems and Hank Marino, Chicago, took third place with a total of 1,307.

First place in the all-events was taken by Kartheiser with a nine-game total of 2,089.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The busiest week of the Big Ten basketball season got under way today with the probability that this week's contests would settle the 1928 championship.

The nine game schedule of the week was to begin tonight with two contests which were expected to have an important bearing on the title.
